Williamsville students named finalists in scholarship competition

Ten students from the Williamsville Central School District have been named finalists in the 2008 National Merit Scholarship Competition.

They are: from Williamsville East High School, Zinan Cheng, Hannah D'elia, Kane Hsieh, Matthew Pawlicki, Raghav Phadke, Richard Sima, Katherine Tang and Katherine Vermilye; from Williamsville North High School, Dana Gradl and Allison Lyttle; and from Williamsville South High School, Roy Hanna.

These students have advanced in the competition after being named semifinalists last September. They are among approximately 15,000 finalists named this year, representing less than 1 percent of high school students nationwide. The selection of some 8,200 Merit Scholarship winners is now in progress. Winners will be announced in May.

Honor Roll

St. Mary's High School in Lancaster recently announced the students who have achieved first honors roll for the second quarter of the 2007-2008 school year: seniors, Brittany Carleton, Cassandra Carleton, Douglas Robinson, Robert Hamilton, and Leonardo Stornio; junior, Kathryn Hamilton and freshman, Grace Daigler. (Editor's note: information for this list has been printed exactly as supplied by the school. The Bee will not reprint any lists because of school errors. Questions should be directed to the school at 683-4824.)

"Dad can barely dress himself now."

"Sometimes he forgets who I am."

"He could live here, but we work all day."

"He's so lonely by himself."

"What if he gets lost?"
